COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT TOOLBOX

Resources from Partners of the Global Fund's
Community Engagement Strategic Initiative

Last updated: August 2023

NEW

ABOUT THIS TOOLBOX

A wealth of information

This Toolbox contains 178 action-oriented resources in 13 different languages. They can be used to help strengthen and support community engagement in Global Fund-related processes. Some of the tools are region-specific, but many have global application.

All in one place

The purpose of this Toolbox is to aggregate resources that are stored in many different places into one centralized repository. Its aim is to be a user-friendly library for communities to strengthen their Global Fund engagement.

By communities, for communities

These tools were developed by partners of the Global Fund's Community Engagement Strategic Initiative, all of which are civil society or community organizations. The tools are designed for use by civil society organizations and community groups who want to engage more meaningfully in Global Fund-related processes at country level.

ABOUT THE STRATEGIC INITIATIVE

The objective of the Global Fund's Community Engagement Strategic Initiative is to strengthen the engagement of civil society and communities most affected by the three diseases in Global Fund and related processes.

Engagement of community and civil society actors at all stages in the grant life cycle is critical in the design, development and implementation of effective responses to the three diseases and systems strengthening.

Community Annex, illustrative examples of narrative for pillar interventions:
Capacitating community organizations (general)

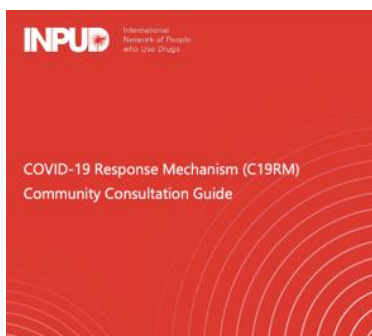

Global Fund Module	Intervention/activities	Rationale, expected impact or outcome
RSBH / Community Systems Strengthening	Capacity building and leadership development Activities related to the establishment, strengthening and sustainability of civil society organizations, especially those that are community-led and focused on HIV and AIDS, and population-led, women-led, led by people living with or affected by the HIV disease, community networks and associations. For example: Note: These activities are taken from the Global Fund evidence framework. Please review closely and select, add or remove the activities that are most relevant. Add specific results (e.g., train NUMBER of members on XYZ in order to...) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Capacity building and mentorship of community organizations. • Capacity strengthening (technical and programmatic) to deliver high-quality integrated (comprehensive) and community-based health services. • Small grants to community-led organizations to increase their capacity in health service delivery, social mobilization, community-led monitoring, community-led research and advocacy, understanding labor rights and social dialogue, etc. 	There is extensive evidence on the importance of community engagement/activities consistently show the link between communities empowered to engage in decisions that impact on their lives and the ultimate effectiveness of health interventions, programs, and systems that are responsive to their needs. This is reflected in the Global Fund's 2023 - 2025 strategy under the Mutual Reinforcing Contribution Objective: empowering the engagement and leadership of most affected communities to drive as one behind, and in the Global AIDS Strategy, which recognizes that "it was one to reduce HIV-related inequalities and get the response on track to end AIDS by 2030, communities living with or affected by HIV must lead the way." Effective community-led HIV responses must be adequately resourced and supported to enable communities to play their role as equal, fully integrated partners in national systems. (UNAIDS 2021, End Inequalities, End AIDS, page 43) Relevant targets from the Global AIDS Strategy: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 30% of testing and treatment services to be delivered by community-led organizations • 80% of service delivery for HIV prevention programmes for key populations and women to be delivered by community, key population and women-led organizations.

How To Write An Advocacy Report

Why is a written report important?
The main goal of the CLAIM project is for networks of people living with HIV to coordinate civil society, build policy recommendations together and to advocate for these in Global Fund processes and other national decision-making spaces. The policies that you advocate for must be clearly defined and written up in a format that can be understood by decision makers. The best way of doing this is to develop a joint civil society report that brings together all your advocacy demands in one place.

Report templates
These are the key sections to include in the report and some tips on what to put in each.

Introduction - Write a short description of who you are and the groups that you represent to arrive at your advocacy demands. It is important to introduce your organization and to include a list of all the groups and other organizations that were involved in the consultations, and the key populations in health areas that they represent (e.g. TB, malaria, people who use drugs, young people).

Independent information - Briefly describe the situation in your country, including any information relating to specific problems that you wish to address. This section should not be too long, a couple of paragraphs are enough. Try to include the reasons for some of these problems.

- Which populations are most affected by malaria, TB or HIV in your country?
- What current policies / laws are in place to help?
- Do you have an action plan national AIDS strategy?
- Are there any particularly successful interventions that have been shown to work?

The resource aims to help networks of people living with HIV to coordinate civil society, build policy recommendations together and to advocate for these in Global Fund processes and other national decision-making spaces.

Opportunities for women to influence the Global Fund in your country

This newsletter has been developed specifically to ensure that Women's Global Fund (W4GF) Advocates are accessing Global Fund Community, Rights and Gender Strategic Initiative Technical Assistance (TA). We hope to see more women in all our diversity accessing TA in line with the Global Fund's Strategic Objective 3 "to promote and protect human rights and gender equality". Accessing TA from the Global Fund is easy and this is what you need to know.

1. What might it mean for you?

W4GF has played a substantial role in increasing women's meaningful participation in CCMs and the understanding and awareness of women and gender on these important country-level structures. When W4GF was launched, just 6% of CCMs had members who either represented women or who were gender specialists and advocates. By 2017, the share had risen to 40%. This improvement is due in large part to advocacy efforts by W4GF and allies to get the Global Fund to make and better enforce requirements for women's engagement and representation on all CCMs.

Accessing TA can be a key part of your efforts to be strategic, organized, inclusive and representative, including by being a source of financial assistance to support the participation of a diverse group of women (including adolescent girls and young women) in national Global Fund processes. So - if you have not already applied for TA then you should.

The Global Fund is committed to supporting the meaningful engagement of women in Global Fund related processes and throughout the funding cycle so that communities can meaningfully engage in Global Fund related processes.

Opportunities For Women To Influence The Global Fund In Your Country

This newsletter outlines how women can benefit from Global Fund technical assistance, including how to apply, and stories of three women who have accessed this support in the past.
